HAIR-SPLITTING LAWYERS

They Will Contend That a Rope is a Deadly Weapon

In the Federal Court at Covington Judge Cochran has set Monday, April 16th, for the trial of the $50,000 damage suit instituted by the widow and children of William Thacker against about thirty men in Fleming county.

An attempt to have the case continued was made by the plaintiff's counsel, who claimed that he had trouble getting witnesses.

As about seventy-five witnesses have been subpoenaed for the case, Judge Cochran decided that no more were needed and set the case for trial.

One of the legal questions arising out of the case is whether or not a rope used in hanging is a deadly weapon.

The plaintiffs allege that Thacker was hanged by a mob and that a rope was the deadly weapon used in the killing.

She was the eldest daughter of the late Thomas Moore of Fernleaf.

Two weeks ago her sister, Mrs. Lizzie Carney, passed away, and the devotion and constant attention at the bedside of Mrs. Carney, together with grief over her sister's death, was primarily the cause of her decease.

She leaves three brothers and two sisters—M. F. and C. T. Moore of Fernleaf and J. H. Moore of Cincinnati, Mrs. John Larkins of Washington and Mrs. J. P. Lauer of Garfield, W. Va.

The funeral will take place tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock from St. Patrick's Church.

SEMI-CENTENNIAL

Minerva College Will Observe Event of Long Establishment

The Fiftieth Anniversary of the Minerva College will be appropriately celebrated May 8th. In the afternoon Rev. P. A. Cave of this city has been invited to deliver a Memorial Address in honor of the memory of James Hiatt and his good wife who gave all they had to endow the College. They both sleep on the hillside above the College, and each year the school children cover their graves with flowers.

At night the noted lecturer, G. W. Bain, will deliver the Jubilee Address, and at the close there will be a grand banquet, to which all the surviving members of the Class of 1856 will receive invitations to be present. There were one hundred pupils in the first school year fifty years ago, and some forty-three are now living.

Hon. C. L. Sallee of this city has been asked to act as Toastmaster at the banquet, and it goes without saying that he will do it well, even if he was not one of the first pupils at the famous old school.

The folks at Minerva are entering heartily into this Jubilee affair, and THE LEDGER predicts that it will be as happy as the Golden Jubilee of the long ago.

Prof. E. L. Gillis is winning golden opinions by his successful management of the College, and it is to be hoped that he will long remain in charge.

THERE is more or less "talk" about "graft" in connection with the building of sewers and other city improvements. THE LEDGER knows nothing on this score; but it does know that it is often much easier to make charges than to prove them. If any of the talking gentlemen know any facts, and will put them down in black and white, THE LEDGER will take pleasure in printing them—"No matter who it helps or hurts."

In entering upon the construction of brick streets, the Council and its Internal Improvement Committee will find the conditions changed altogether. Heretofore the property-holders have been in a great measure powerless;—at least, they have, year after year, tolerated a waste of the general taxes on a worthless "improvement" system that did not improve, administered by men who had no practical knowledge of the work which they were attempting to do. Now, however, each property-owner in front of whose property a brick street is to be laid will be called upon to pay for it. It therefore becomes a matter of personal and individual concern to him; and it would be a negligent person indeed who would not see to it that the work is done by men skilled in that business, under charge of practical foremen, with an experienced Civil Engineer at their head, and that the contractors are placed under ample bond for the faithful execution of the contract.

FOLLOWING the Legislature's tax of 1½ cents a gallon on rectified whisky, the price of kerosene has advanced half a cent on the gallon.

AH, there's good news from Ashland. The Independent says—

"There is talk of introducing the study of reading, writing and arithmetic into the Public Schools again, and eliminating water color painting, raffia, bead and basket work and other high art occupations."

THE local street builders may just as well make up their minds first as last that the property-owners who are to pay for brick streets do not intend to submit to any "projeckin'" on their part. Every man has a right to employ whoever he pleases to do his work; and in this case the man who are to pay for the work will demand the right to have it done by those who know how to do it.

AFTER MANY TRIALS.

He was a sad-faced American tourist, and as he seated himself in a London restaurant he was immediately attended by an obsequious waiter.

"I want two eggs," said the American—"one fried on one side and one on the other."

"Ow is that, sir?" asked the astounded waiter.

"Two eggs—one fried on one side and one on the other."

"Very well, sir."

The waiter was gone several minutes, and when he returned his face was a study.

"Would you please repeat your order, sir?"

"I said, very distinctly, two eggs—one fried on one side and one on the other."

Oppressive silence, and then a dazed "Very well, sir."

This time he was gone longer, and when he returned he said anxiously.

"Would it be awksing too much, sir, to 'ave you repeat your order, sir? I cawn't think I 'ave it right, sir, y' know."

"Two eggs," said the American, sadly and patiently—"one fried on one side and one on the other."

More oppressive silence and another fainter "Very well, sir."

This time he was gone still longer. When he returned his collar was unbuttoned, his hair disheveled and his face scratched and bleeding. Leaning over the waiting patron he whispered beseechingly:

"Would you mind taking boiled heggs, sir? I've 'ad some words with the cook."

Defends the "Red-Headed" Girl

Kansas City Journal.

There has recently been forwarded to me a clipping which states that Congressman Augustus Owsley Stanley of Kentucky has made a statement in connection with the proposed law in Congress to provide a whipping-post for wife beaters that he would not permit his Southern chivalry to interfere if he saw a husband beating his red-headed wife.

I understand that Mr. Stanley is a candidate for re-election, and believing that a man who will make such a statement about so many of the brightest, brainiest, smartest and prettiest women in the world, is unfit for Congress, or indeed anywhere else on earth except the backwoods, I should like very much if you will permit me to voice my sentiments in regard to my actual personal experience with red-headed women in the columns of your valuable paper.

For the past seven years I have employed nothing but red-headed girls for office assistance when it was possible to get them, for I have found they learn quicker and are much smarter, taken as a class, than their dark haired sisters. That red hair should be an indication of more than ordinary cerebral capacity in those who are lucky enough to possess it seems to be a matter of wonderment and in many cases amusement when I assert it to be a fact, but my early life was spent on the Western frontier, and to a plainsman who must find his horses at break of day, or go on foot perhaps sixty miles to water, a blade of waving grass shows which way the wind blows; a stone overturned must have a cause, and a big bear makes a big track while a cub makes a little one.

A frontiersman's life makes of him a believer of signs—especially those which are as plainly readable as an open book, and therefore, to me, a shock of red hair (the redder the better) is a bright badge or banner that anyone owning it has reason to be proud of.

As a rule the red haired girl has been almost invariably the subject of some joke, usually a stale one, and it is not a square deal in any sense of the word. It is unjust, unfair and uncharitable.

Take for instance the hoary chestnut of "the white horse." That animal is ringboned, spavined and got the heaves; no amount of dope can ever put life in him again. It is time to quit riding him and turn him out to pasture. The girl with the bright banner of beauty and the sweet pink prettiness that goes with it is worthy of a better mount. Give her a thoroughbred; she deserves it. Personally I like to see them about me, and why shouldn't I? Poets have raved over auburn locks and golden tresses since poets began to rave, and artists have tried to paint them, but they can't get the glister of gold or glittering radiance that comes only when "the bright morning sun falls upon them at the proper angle." Paint will not do it. Nature did her work intending that never should it be copied. My office help has been called a symphony of red. I like that—it's a pretty "symphony."

Some people love the pictures of the old masters, some admire those of the new masters of paint and chisel, but the beauties of Nature herself have always appealed to me as being superior beyond all question to anything that art or science can attain—therefore give me the real flesh and blood beauty—the models themselves that artists and sculptors rave over and spend years of their life in trying to portray in paint or cold, chilly, unspeakable marble, always by comparison, to be met with the most dismal failure. It is true that the red-headed girl has a temper; so has anyone else that ever made any stir in the world. You can't run a locomotive without steam or electricity. The red-headed girl is loaded to the guards with both, and she gets there accordingly.

The locomotive will blow up occasionally and the red-headed girl will fly off on a tangent, but you won't fool with the locomotive at such a time, and you better not with the red-headed girl. Just let her alone, and watch her come back to normal; never was such an effect on canvas or in marble—first the wrathful expression gives way, and the rosy red of her dimpled cheeks begins to subside, until it reaches its natural peachblow tint, then the ruby lips will pucker to a pretty pout, or a dainty smile, and Miss Red Head is herself again, temper all gone, hand on the safety valve, ready to throw all that steam, electricity, fire and energy into her work, whatever that may be. Watching her come back to normal is simply exquisite; watching her reach the point to which she must come back is another matter, but what is the use in harping on the one little frailty when all else is virtue itself? Suppose Reggie Vanderbilt did hit the green cloth, get up against a brace game and lose a few thousand. It is hardly square to keep chucking it at him the rest of his natural life, is it? All of us have made mistakes, and if losing our temper occasionally was the greatest, I am sure each of us might pose as a paragon of goodness. The red-head will at times lose her temper, pose it bad, and no mistake, but after years of observation, I am free to say it is almost her one fault, and to counterbalance it she has about every other good quality that can be got into one outfit. Her business qualifications are of the best. As evidence that I am right, ask anybody who has ever employed one, and again you have only to look about you and notice the bright and leading minds who are now running in the same channel. In John Wanamaker's great store, which I visited some time ago, I saw five on the second floor in thirty minutes, and the rest of the entire house has them dotted around just thick enough to remind one of American Beauty roses at a flower show. Take the New York Evening World of December 18th, 1902; there is nearly a column in it in regard to the red haired girl. In big, black head lines it says: "Red Haired Girl Stage Favorite." (She always was a favorite everywhere.) "The brunette is the staple article, with the strawberry blonde as musical comedy delicatessen."

One leading theatrical manager says they command a higher salary and gives as the reason "that red hair lights up better than any other kind. It illumines the stage like a Fourth of July celebration, and the red-headed girl is as scarce as diamonds of the first water."

They illumine an office in the same manner. I knew it when I began to employ them, and while said theatrical manager is supposed to be and generally is strictly up to-date and a minute ahead, he certainly is several years behind on this particular matter. All these years I have been variously estimated as "a little bit off on red hair," stuck on her peachblow prettiness, etc., but I have stood firmly by my convictions, as Columbus did when he said the world was not flat, but round, though the wise (?) men smiled in derision. I have learned the value of the red haired girl and her business capacity, and therefore I want no other. The idea of standing by and seeing one whipped without interfering. It makes my blood boil to think of it! I am not much of a fighter, but no man living can whip a red-headed woman in my presence, wife or no wife, until he has first laid my six foot and four inches of 200 pounds in the dust and sat on it. And I hereby give notice to Congressman Stanley and the world at large that I stand ready to champion the cause of all the red haired girls.

The wholesome hospitality of the Walsh home was delightfully in evidence, the members of the family giving every attention to the entertainment of their guests.

It is an assured fact, unless something unforeseen happens, that Maysville will have a big circus this spring, thanks to the efforts of our enterprising merchants who know the value of a circus as a "crowd bringer" and "business getter." The great John Robinson shows have been induced to enter Kentucky, and will be the first big show that has been in the state in two years, and will exhibit at Maysville on or about Monday, May 7th. The Robinson shows are classed as number four among the big shows and require two trains consisting of forty-five double length cars to transport its people and paraphernalia. The surrounding country will be heavily advertised, and, mind our prediction, the Robinson shows will attract such crowds that have not been in Maysville since the Barnum show exhibited here two years ago.

HELD THE TRAIN

For the Stork and a Former Mason County Woman

While a Big Four passenger train was held an hour at Muncie, Ill., a baby boy was born to Mrs. George L. Dobyns, a young Kentucky woman who was traveling from this county to join her husband at Urbana, Ill.

Not a passenger grumbled at the waiting. When a physician gave the signal the train moved on.

Mr. and Mrs. Dobyns until last week were residents of the Mt. Gilead neighborhood, and following the sale of their property there Mr. Dobyns left for his new home in Illinois. No doubt he was pleasantly surprised to see so much of a family swoop down on him.

The great coal strike began in earnest yesterday, with the backbone of the operators' resistance apparently damaged in the bituminous fields. F. L. Robbins and some independent operators in the Western Pennsylvania District have signed the 1903 scale contracts presented by the miners. They mine 30,000,000 tons of the 41,000,000 tons normal production of the Western Pennsylvania District, and of the 117,000,000 normal production of the Central Competitive field, composed of Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

The Keystone State will be down today from Pittsburgh.

The Raymond Horner turned back to Pittsburgh from Pomeroy.

Since it has been definitely settled that the mines of the Pittsburgh Coal Company will continue in operation, operators are again shipping a great quantity of the coal which has been stored in the harbor during the joint convention at Indianapolis. The rivers have receded enough to permit of safe navigation and danger from the strong currents is no longer to be feared. There are several million bushels of coal in the harbor and the bulk of this will be sent out on the present stage.

SOCIAL EVENTS

"The Tatler," published at St. Augustine, Fla., says: "Mrs. George L. Cox, a handsome matron, and her pretty daughter, Miss Cox, of Maysville, Ky., are passing a fortnight at the Alcazar," and in speaking of an entertainment at the Magnolia Hotel, it says: "Miss Cox, the bright, golden-haired young Maysville (Ky.) girl rivalled many another beauty in the waltz."

FISCAL COURT

The Fiscal Court met yesterday, Judge C. D. Newell presiding, with the following Magistrates present—John W. Boyer, Luke Dye, A. H. Calvert, R. L. Cooper, S. A. Frazee, John C. Kirk, J. O. Pickrell and Charles Wallingford.

C. D. Pearce, Treasurer of Mason county, produced his reports of the following funds—Free Turnpike, General Claims, Infirmary, Back Tax and Road Fund, and same ordered filed.

One hundred and twenty $20 interest coupons of Mason County Free Turnpike, Nos. 1 to 60, inclusive, were burned in the presence of the Court.

The following reports were received and filed—Superintendent of Infirmary, Infirmary Board, Infirmary Physician, Turnpike Superintendent.

Ordered that the report of C. L. Wood, for whisky tax withdrawn, be now filed and spread upon the records.

Ordered that Esquires Calvert, Cooper and Pickrell be appointed a Committee to examine the various financial reports presented at this term of Court.

Dr. A. G. Browning, Jail Physician, made the following report:

MAYSVILLE, Ky., March 27th, 1906.
The Honorable Fiscal Court, Mason County, Ky.: I beg leave to submit my report as Jail Physician for Mason County, for year ending 31st of March, 1906.

With two or three exceptions, there has been little really serious illness during the past year. Most cases have been of the Saturday night kind—jolly and repentant; the repentance coming next day and lasting 'til—the next drink. And then, the same old story over and over again.

Of these there has been an exceptionally large number, and of bad kind; either there is progressive degeneracy on the part of the subjects, or booze is getting below par in quality. So it is, we of the Jail have had more drunks, and meaner, than heretofore.

All the same, they have gotten from all the officials all that they needed. No one, to my knowledge, has failed to get three square meals daily, a bed as good as their "mammy's gave 'em," and a pill (sugar-coated if preferred) upon occasion.

Others have been sick—really, seriously sick; and it is because this does now and then happen in the County Jail that I beg your attention to a real want, as I view it.

We can manage the cut heads and bruised shins; but it's different with the poor man or woman, drifting to the inevitable, and lugging with them disease and impending death, even though blessed with the environments of home and all the sacred name implies. No matter how brought about; doubtless all their own fault; but now they can help it no more than you or I, and one time, they were doubtless "somebody's darlings," and 'tis up to us to be human, if only because they are outcasts.

The ordinary cell in the Jail, though the best possible of its kind, is not the best for an emergency like this. Neither patient nor practitioner gets full justice; nor is our charity and civilization given a fair showing. This needs no argument.

I would respectfully and earnestly suggest that some one room in the County Jail be assigned for the use of the actually sick; that it be economically but effectively equipped in hospital fashion. The essentials being ventilation, cleanliness, reasonable comfort and modern appliances the cost of this, under proper direction, would be insignificant, and the advantage in keeping with our day and generation.

This is only with reference to the comfort and welfare of the individual patient; but there are others, of whom we are custodians and for whose reasonable allotments we are sponsors. Imagine a case of smallpox, diphtheria, typhoid or scarlet fever, even measles, in the County Jail, with no other than present provisions for isolation and treatment, and a problem would present itself for immediate solution; and it would be a puzzle.

I ask your prompt and serious consideration of this. Very respectfully,

A. G. BROWNING,
Jail Physician Mason County.

WORK THAT TELLS.

Plenty of It Has Been Done Right Here in Maysville.

Cures that last are cures that tell. To thoroughly know the virtues of a medicine you must investigate the cures and see if they prove permanent. Doan's Kidney Pills stand this test, and plenty of proof exists right here in Maysville. People who testified years ago to relief from backache, kidney and urinary disorders, now declare that relief was permanent and the cure perfect. How can any Maysville sufferer longer doubt the evidence?

C. L. Hubbard, employed in Cablish's grocery, Cox Building, and living at 325 West Third street, Maysville, Ky., says:

"As I stated in a testimonial given in 1900, Doan's Kidney Pills brought me positive relief from inflammation of the bladder and a disturbed action of the kidneys. After some time I felt a slight return of the trouble but again used Doan's Kidney Pills and again found complete relief. Now, after nearly five years I feel able to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills with even greater confidence than before. The results of its use in my case have been very satisfactory. I got the remedy at J. Jas. Wood & Son's Drug-store."
